

Financial market simulation: a renormalization approach

Kai Xu

Peking University

Abstract: In this talk, we discuss some critical phenomena in the financial markets along with viewpoints of phase transitions in physics. We will discuss some possible new ways of predicting markets as well as give a brief review of previous work done by various authors.